We believe Brookfield's advantage in managing infrastructure assets is rooted in three key areas:

Scale

- Brookfield manages the largest infrastructure funds in the world, across private infrastructure equity, private infrastructure debt and renewable power & transition.
- Many of the most attractive infrastructure investments require access to large-scale capital, which Brookfield can offer, either on our own or in partnership with others.

Global Reach

- Brookfield has operations globally, with an on-the-ground presence in 30 countries.
- This global reach allows Brookfield to be selective where we invest and to go where the most attractive opportunities are present.

Operating Expertise

- Brookfield's long-standing operating expertise helps to underwrite our investments, better understand the risks, and maximize value for our investors.
- Brookfield implements in a hands-on, operations-oriented approach aimed at maximizing value, and the approach focuses on initiatives that include enhancing the contracting profile of our assets, investing in capital projects, and providing capital to the companies with which Brookfield works.

Infrastructure is a broad and varied category, and one that is constantly evolving with new technology and needs, but it all plays the key role of underpinning the global economy. Infrastructure investing can bring a range of potential portfolio benefits—including income, potentially hedging inflation, and providing resilience during periods of market turmoil—and historically, infrastructure has outperformed other asset classes in down markets. These attributes have helped provide investors with attractive, long-term growth.
